Little John, aged six, stood watching the minister perform the funeral services at the graveyard, over his uncle's body There was a slight pause, and friends of the family began to throw coal on the casket of the dead man.

John, with a look half-perplexed and half of wonder on his face, looked down and boldly said, "Well, I knew where uncle was going, all right, but I didn't know he had to furnish his own coal."
